1. Practice moving your mouth from a wide open position (as when you say the sound of "ah" in the word not) to a lightly closed one. Do not make any noise as you do it. Then, get ready to practice the words that end with the "m" sound: Hold your hands open next to your shoulders with your mouth open.

2. Close your hands into tight fists to parallel the movement of your lips as they lightly close.

Tom Notting

Close your mouth lightly and hum. Many students have the most difficulty when the sound of "m" is in the word-final position, so the practice exercise illustrated here involves opening and closing your mouth to say, for example, the word from.
